Election of Officers for the Ensuing Year-The Woman Fellowship Question Solved Without Debate Award of Prizes-Papers Read.

HOT SPRINGS, VA., September 1 .-(Special.)-Dr. George Ben. Johnston, president, called to order the Virginia Medical Society at 9 o'clock for its morning session, and communications and general routine matters were con-

The secretary stated that efforts to raise a fund for prizes for the other competitors who submitted essays on the medical history of Virginia had met with complete success, the sums to be awarded being $100, $75, $50, and $25. Drs. William R. Gordon and Robert F. Williams, of Richmond, and Robert J. Preston, of Marion, constitute the Editorial Committee, who will compile a complete history from those submitted. Dr. Greer Baughman, of Richmond, was elected a member of the society.

At 11 o'clock, the hour appointed, the At H o'clock, the hour appointed, the vice-president was called to the chair, and Dr. George Ben. Johnston, of Richmond, delivered the presidential address. The speaker, after alluding to the honor which had been conferred upon him by the society, announced as his theme "The Value to the Public of State Medical Societies." Attention was called Attention was called edical Societies." Medical Societies. Attention was carried to the fact that these societies were frequently regarded by outsiders as either trades unions or social organizations, where scientific work is only an incident. Their real object was threefold, the advancement of science. an incident. Their real object was threefold—the advancement of science, the promotion of philanthropy, and the fostering of good fellowship. To those who were present during this meeting the last of these propositions was self-evident. No State or territory in the Union was without its medical society, restelled as the same general plan and modelled on the same general plan and having the same objects in view. Memin these societies ranged, said, from forty in New Mexico to 3,000 in Pennsylvania, and the aggregate membership. 24,570, almost equalicating the second of erical strength of the standing army of the United States. The requirements for entrance into The requirements for entrance into these organizations were rigid and execting. Creed, political affinities, and social status were ignored. The gauge was laid on merit. Sound morals, good citizenship, professional rectitude, and technical skill were demanded, thus bringing into these bodies only the best element of the medical violescent. element of the medical profession, men whose character and attainments entitled them to rank with the best in their communities. The efforts of medical societies were all in behalf of the public, and were marked by absolute unselfishness, and greater sympathy and more cordial support would be accorded them were their aims and purposes better understeed by the public. Every sick person, rich or poor, he said, profited by the educational advantages his physician derived from attendance on these meetings, Every citizen was benefited by the protection procured through the instrumentality of these societies in the passage of protective statutes and the promulgation of the laws of bygiene. ment of the medical profession, men MEDICAL LITERATURE.

The speaker next called attention to the xtent and value of the contributions to extent and value of the contributions to medical literature brought together through the medical societies. Each year twenty thousand pages of scientific matter were thus collected, and these articles were read by thousands of readers beyond the confines of the State from which they emanated. Each paper was listed in the Index Medicus, a monthly publication, and thus authors and teachers were enabled to make use of this vast and valuable annual collection of medical and surgical literature.

In every State except Oregon and Utah the medical examining boards were the outcome of suggestions from the State medical societies. The results in another department of legislation were equally striking—the establishment of State boards of health. These, too. except in ten States, have, he said, been secured through the efforts of the medical societies. These boards in times of pestilence stood in the same relation to towns and cities as did milliary garrisons in times of war.

and cities as did military garrisons in times of war.

In conclusion, Dr, Johnston made the recommendation that the law-makers intrust to physicians the dealing with matters relating to their special sphere, thus removing from the domain of politics the settling of questions of the highest importance to the people at large.

At the close of Dr, Johnston's address he was the recipient of prolonged applause, and thanks were unanimously voted him.

NIGHT SESSION.

The night session was called to order at $20 o'clock. The first paper—'Bacterlelogical Diagnosis'—was read by Dr. Ernest C. Levy, of Richmond, Professor of Bacterlelogy at the Medical College of Virginia. Owing to the wide field covered by the subject. Dr. Levy confined his remarks to the consideration of the practical bearings of bacteriological diagnosis in the diseases where it is most frequently demanded, including tuberculosis, diphtheria, and typhoid-fever. These were taken up in the order of discovery of practical bacteriological methods for the identification of each.

In speaking of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption), attention was directed to the importance of diagnosis in the earlier stages of the disease, before fatal inroads had been made upon the system. In many cases this could be done only by bacteriological examination of the sputum, It was pointed out that if recognized in its incipiency, conzumption was by no means so fatal a disease as is commonly incipiency, conzumption was by no ans so fatal a disease as is commonly means so fatal a disease as is commonly supposed.

The greater part of Dr. Levy's paper was devoted to discussing the bearings of bacteriological diagnosts in diphtheria and typhoid-fever. In the former disease there were many cases where inspection of the throat sufficed, but, on the other hand, the appearances in diphtheria and pseudo-diphtheria were frequently so similar that it is impossible, without the abd of the microscope, to differentiate the two conditions at the besinning of the discuss, the time when appropriate treatment was all important. Pseudo-diphtheria was a comparatively benign discuss, he said, while true diphtheria was accordingly fatal.

The object of the test was not to detect the germs themselves, but to note the action of the pattent's blood upon a culture of typhoid bacilli, which was kept at the laboratory for the purpose, it having been shown that a specific reaction occurred between typhoid bacilli and the blood of one who had typhoid-fever. It was pointed out that this test was a new one, whose range of application has not yet been decided, although it seemed to give promise of great usefulness. In concluding the discussion, Dr. Levy ably defended the position he had taken.

WORK ON THE RIVER.

Committee Takes a Tour of Inspec

Committee on Improvement of James River made a tour of inspection yesterday afternoon, going as far down the James as Dutch Gap, and finding the channel in very satisfactory condition. A meeting was held on board the city tug Thomas Cunningham, Sr., and there were present Chairman Vaughan and Messrs. present Chairman vaugnan and Messis. Picot, Mosby, Montgomery, Ryan, Chris-tian, Fergusson, and Guy, of the com-mittee; City-Engineer Cutshaw, Colonel John S. Harwood, Captain G. Watt Tay-lor, and Captain L. D. Crenshaw. A considerable quantity of routine business was transacted. The report of Captain Cunningham, superintendent of the river work, was submitted, showing that during the month of August 55 seew loads, or 2,700 cubic yards, of sand, rock, and gravel were removed from the channel of the river. From August 19th to the 31st the hands of the department were employed making repairs to the three scows owned by the city.

The usual pay-rolls and bills were approved and ordered to be paid.

Proposals were received for furnishing the department with Pocahontas steam coal from September 1st until July 1, 1836. Those bidding were Messrs. S. H. Hawes, James N. King, Warner Moore, and the Richmond Ice Company. The latter firm was awarded the contract to furnish the coal at $2.90 per ton of 2,240 pounds. The members of the committee and the guests on the tug were invited by Captain G. Watt Taylor to visit his farm at Dutch Gap, but upon arrival there, as a light rain was falling, the party only disem-barked to go over a part of the place and enjoy as many delicious watermeions as they could eat.

POLICE AND FIRST MARKET. A regular session of the Council Committee on Police was held at No. 110 west Clay street yesterday morning. Present were: Messrs. Blanks (sub-chairman), Williams, and Whalen. The police pay-roll for August, amounting to $8.092.45, and bills amounting to $364.86 were approved and ordered to be paid. On motion of Mr. Williams, the spector of Gas was requested to place a new meter in the Third Police Station and to have the gas-pipes and connecopinion of the committee the excessive amount of gas consumed therein is due to leakage or ineffective fixtures.

IN AN AWKWARD FIX.

Governor Russell and the North Carolina Railway Commissioners. RALEIGH, N. C., September 1.-(Spetial.)-The hearing was held this afternoon in the matter of the answers of Railway-Commissioners James W. Wilson and Otho Wilson to Governor Russell's charges against them, which he sell's charges against them, which he says were based upon information. These charges are that J. W. Wilson, jointly with Vice-President Andrews, of the Southern railway, owns the hotel at Round Knob, which is a railway eating-house, and that Otho Wilson leases and operates it. Both the Wilsons to-day filed absolute denials. These were read to Governor Russell. John D. Shaw, counsel for the Seaboard-Air Line, represented J. W. Wilson, and argued that section 1 of the act creating the Commission, under which section the Commission, under which section the Governor had acted in citing the commissioners to show cause why they should not be suspended, was unconsti-tutional, because a later act made the Commission a court. He also said that Commission a court. He also said that the commissioners had a property right in their offices. He said the Commission in their offices. He said the Commission had been charged with corruption, and could not be removed, save as judges may be removed—that is, by impeach-ment. Governor Russell took the answers, and said he would consider them and arguments of counsel. It is the expressed belief of many persons that he had made up his mind to remove. To-day's proceedings put him in an extremely awkward position.

His advocacy of free coinage, they feared, might be construed as an expression of the corporation's. Apprehension on this point having been removed, the corporation felt that his resignation was uncalled for, and hoped that he would

SPAIN'S POSITION AS TO CUBA. Report of Attorney Cartisle on Fillbustering. WASHINGTON, September 1.-The report of Attorney Calderon Carlisle, of this city, the legal adviser of the Spanish this city, the legal adviser of the Spanish Government in this country, to Senor Dupuy de Lome, the Spanish Minister, on the Cuban question in this country, with particular reference to filibustering expeditions, was made public to-day. It is an exhaustive document of over six hundred printed pages, and abounds in coplous extracts from judicial opinions and documents of various kinds bearing upon the relations of the United States with Spain, as regards the Cuban insurrection. Special reference is made to the laws of the United States, and proceedings thereunder to prevent expeditions against the lawful government of Spain in Cuba from leaving the United States. This is the second report on this line by Mr. Carlisie, the former one having reviewed the attitude of this government toward all nations on the subject of neutrality.

toward all nations on the subject of neutrality.

The present report deals principally with the municipal laws of the United States, and their construction by the courts, as furnishing the means at the command of the government to fuifil what is termed the international duty of the United States, "admitted, in principle at least, by the proclamations of the President." It says that while the practical results of the Supreme Court decision in the Three Friends case have not been as immediate as might well have been expected, that decision has a far-reaching importance, the consequences of which are yet to be seen. In summing up the conclusions from the investigation which Mr. Carlisle has been engaged in, the report says:

"A continued study of the neutrality laws of the United States, and their application to the existing emergency, convinces the undersigned that in spite of the various failures of justice which have vinces the undersigned that in spite of the various failures of justice which have occurred, the laws are sufficient in them-selves to enable the United States to come up to the full measure of interna-tional duty which they required of Great Britain."

come up to the full measure of international duty which they required of Great Birtain."

The following conclusions are reached:
1. That the United States now owes to Spain all the international duties which one friendly nation owes to another in time of peace, and can owe no international duty to the insurgents.
2. That by admitting officially and proclaiming to its citizens and inhabitants the continuance of the insurrection in Cuba, the United States admits knowledge of the fact, which increases its duty of vigilance in detecting, and diligence in preventing, the beginning or setting on foot, or providing or preparing the means for, military expeditions or enterprises by its citizens, or inhabitants within its territory, against Spanish territory.
3. That as to mere commerce, Spain can under present conditions claim no right under the law of nations to interfere with it outside of her harbors; which fact, however, does not lessen, but increases, the obligation of the United States to prevent military expeditions and enterprises against Spain from being begun, or set on foot, or the means for such being provided or prepared within the territory of the United States, by recognized and authorized agents of the insurgents, under the false and fraudulent pretence of mere peaceful and lawful commerce.
4. That even admitting, in the present insurgents, under the laise and hawful commerce.

4. That even admitting, in the present state of the law, that citizens of the United States may sell arms and munitions of war to anybody who chooses to buy them, and is able to pay for them, and that recognized and authorized agents of the Cuban insurgents within the United States may thus obtain large quantities of arms and munitions of war to aid the insurrectionists, the aid must end here, because, in fact and in law, by mere commerce the insurgents emissaries in the United States cannot get these arms and munitions to the insurgents in the field, for whom they are purchased, but in order to accomplish this a military expedition or enterprise must be begun, or set on foot, or the means must be prepared and provided by the insurgents or their agents, within the territory of the United States.

5. That the municipal laws, which in themselves, or by reason of their administration by municipalities, or executive officers, permit the repeated consummation of hostile enterprises against a friendly nation, can furnish no justification or extenuation for any international wrong or damage against such friendly nation.

OXFORD, N. C., September 1.—(Special.)—idt. H. A. The town had refused to pay these bonds, and extended litigation followed, in which the town was victorious, our State Supreme Court holding that the issue of bonds was void, because of irregularities in the passage of the act incorporating the railroad.

It is stated that the demand made yesterday was preparatory to the institution of a new suit in the Federal Court to test the validity of these bonds. for a Richmond Bank.

Three of Them Dead-"Rough-on Rats" in the Well.

LOUISVILLE, KY., September 1.-A special to the Evening Post from Paducah says: Thirteen members of the family, and people living on the farm of Henry Miller, near Metropolis, Ill. were poisoned, and three of them are dead. The suffering of the other victims is said to be terrible to witness. It is thought at least eight of them will die. The names of none of the victims are given. A hired girl, who is insane, threw a package of "Rough-on-rats" in the well. Her name could not be learned, but she has been arrested, and admits her crime.

Outbreak on the Malabar Coast. MADRAS. September 1.—An outbreak is reported among the Moplahs, or fanatical Mohammedans, of the Malabar coast. It has not yet assumed large proportions.

Malabar is a district of India in the Madras presidency, and on the west coast of India, though the term Malabar coast is applied to the west coast of India in general.

Hanged for the Usual Crime, HENDERSON, N. C., September L-(Special.)—George Brodie, the negro who committed a criminal assault on a young white girl near Kettrell, was hanged here to-day. At the last moment he confessed
